OUR

A beautiful blue masima; I knew you, and will walk with you forever on...

Like a sucker punch to the heart, I often experience moments of feeling in which I stumble forward, stumble back, and make an attempt to understand that of which can never be understood.

To have known my Father was to me, as to most, a gift that I could never dream of returning. To have known the love, shelter, and support we all felt under his watch is that of fairy tales. Novellas never written, songs never sung — true beauty encapsulated in one man that I aspire to reach, each and every day. There is not another soul in this universe that I felt kinship and trust in, like that of my Dad. For that, I am thankful...From that, I have been given the strength to not just float by in life — drifting, and watching passersby — I've been given arms and legs to kick, swim, sing, and love.

Those of us who were lucky enough to know Bruce Francis, even in the smallest of ways, were able to take away something that no one I know would give back for the world: A truer sense of self, a truer sense of the bitterness and beauty that this world has to offer.

We are not perfect creatures, and my Father was far from it, but to me, that was the most perfect thing about him. An honesty and trust in those he loved and those who loved him, to know that though there are struggles in life, with help and compassion for each other, we will always find our peace in the clearing.

I love you.

- Sean Francis, November 2004

"Ashley Woods... Never Forgotten"

April 19, 1987 ~ August 7, 2004

Around 10:45 on August 7th of 2004 Ashley Woods was out with a couple of friends driving around when they were all involved in a fatal accident and Ashley lost her life. She was 17 and was going to be an aunt. Her dreams were set to be a cook in the Army someday. Her friends and companions will never forget her and her memory will always live on through them and her family.

"A hot ticket with an infectious laugh. She was never shy. Some kids it is hard to get to know, but not with her, she always had a group of friends with her." - Mrs. Treat

"She had a brilliant smile as she bounced down school hallways" - Trooper Chuck

"The Cheese Dip and the A. E. Incident With Ashley." - Leanne C.

"She was always very happy and I can remember that laugh that she had." - Jon C.

"I loved Ashley. She was a good friend and she always stood up for me. Everyday after T.A. she would step on my heels in the hallway and now when I walk down the hallway, it just doesn't seem the same." - Becky T.

Nicknames: Shlee, Ash, Doodsy
Found With: Ashley Gove, Ashley Ferouson, Ashley Coolidge, her sister Allison

"Baking up a storm and cooking too; was just a teaspoon of her life Bouncing, giggling, and chattering as she glided into every room With that mischievous smirk on her face that everyone knew." - Courtney S.

"She was born in Alaska and one day at the mall this kid came up to us and had a parka with fur on it, she said 'have you seen my igloo', we both laughed and I said 'she's an Eskimo' and then she said 'yeah I'm an Eskimo'. It was random but quite amusing." - Erica J.
